

Religious Education

Our aim for Religious Education at Millfields is to provide a well-planned and sequenced curriculum that enables learners to gain a deep understanding of a range of religious beliefs and practices, empowering them to engage in respectful dialogue, promoting tolerance and understanding of different cultures and faiths. We aim to foster pupils' self-awareness, promoting their spiritual, moral, social, and cultural development, and enabling them to explore their own beliefs, values and experiences within a diverse society.

We deliver a well-planned and well sequenced RE curriculum that meets the statutory requirements of the locally agreed syllabus. We offer a wide range of experiences, allowing learners to learn from a range of different faiths, reflect on their own experiences and beliefs, and consider how these relate to those of others. We engage with local faith communities, organising visits and inviting speakers who provide further insights into different faith traditions. We use a variety of high-quality resources, including artefacts, texts and multimedia, which aid learners' understanding of different religious beliefs and practices.

Pupils display knowledge and understanding of a diverse range of religious beliefs and practices. They can communicate this knowledge in a clear and sensitive manner, showing respect for different cultures and faiths. We see evidence of pupils making informed decisions about their own beliefs and values, helping them to articulate these confidently in a diverse society. Our learners demonstrate that they are responsible, empathetic and tolerant individuals.
